

Disclaimer

The participant takes part in the event at his own risk. He waives any claim against the organizers and its agents for property- and personal-damage, suffered by the participants in the event. The participant will bear the costs of damages he causes himself.

The exclusion of liability would not apply when and if the damage of the participant was caused by the organizer and its agents intentionally or through gross negligence, or when damage to health of the participant was caused through the improper conditions of the provided vehicles.

The participant is aware that, if he may take part in sections, which use vehicles for which he has no license, he will bear the full risk of participation himself. Same is true for example for jet-ski riders who aren't able to swim. There won't be additional indications of the required license or further inquiries. The organizer refuses the transportation of passengers not participating or animals in the vehicle during the event.

The organizer points out explicitly that the participant has to act extremely disciplined. During the entire duration of the event the servants of the organizer are authorized to give instructions to the participant.

All activities include a security briefing in advance. The participant confirms to be adequately advised of using the vehicles and related security arrangements and starts the trip only under this condition.

The participant confirms not to be affected by the intake of alcohol, drugs or medicine. For security reasons, the organizer or its agents may exclude participants of the event without giving any reasons.

With my signature I accept this disclaimer.

last name

first name

Pachfurth, place, date

signature